

LAW PUNDITS
LAW SCHOOL GUIDANCE COURSE (LSGC)

The number of students seeking admission to law schools, across the world, has been on the rise since the beginning of the 21st century. The number of law schools has also increased. With the influx of a large number of students into centres of learning, the law faculty is insufficient, hence ill-equipped, to guide the students effectively. Also, since there is no national standard in providing legal education across the country, the new law student remains clueless about navigating through the sea of law study in law schools.

The Law Pundits Law School Guidance Course is an innovative step in standardising the study of law in law schools by being an instructive programme in navigating through law school while utilising various resources and avenues available to the law student.

OBJECTIVES

The primary objective of the Law Pundits Law School Guidance Course is to lay a firm foundation for the first year law student by providing the necessary information, tools and strategies complimenting law school studies to carve out a fruitful legal career. The course will familiarise attendees with the skills required for studying law effectively, the various curricular and co-curricular activities in law school, and the different avenues that would determine the career of the student, and resources and tools for law students.

WHO CAN ATTEND?

The Law School Guidance Course is designed to cater to the first year and the second year law student. Interested students in the subsequent years of law school study can also enroll for the course.
